

Domaine Loubejac

WILLAMETTE

APPELLATION OREGON CONTROLEE

In the south of France lies the historical town of Loubejac. So too, across the ocean on the forty-fifth parallel in the southern Willamette Valley, will you find the windswept vineyard of Domaine Loubejac.

The cooler climate and Burgundian similarities make the vineyard ideal for Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. Both varietals display crisp, clean fruit on the palate backed by classically fragrant aromatics.

Lying seventy miles south of Portland and forty miles east of the pacific coastline, the Domaine Loubejac vineyard allows for a new world style flavor profile through consistent ripening of fruit.

At the same time, the crisp battering of wind that the vineyard receives through the Van Duzer Corridor imparts an old world raciness to the fruit that creates a traditional perception of depth and complexity.

A unique mixture of sedimentary and Missoula flood soils provide sufficient water retention whilst still allowing for slight vine stress; preventing overly vigorous growth and retaining a balanced crop.

The resulting fruit, in combination with a hands-off winemaking approach, culminates in elegant wines with a subtle intensity well suited for meal pairings.
